Children Of The Forest

Tony Wright asks, Are we the lost children of the forest?

Tonight, Tony will be exploring the connection between the accelerating expansion, sudden stall and subsequent shrinkage of our brain, our unusual juvenile traits and our ancestral symbiotic relationship with the reproductive organs of plants.

Did the breakdown of our unique symbiotic relationship with fruit, and the impact it had on our brain, result in the mythos of a lost golden age of innocence? A fall from grace and the emergence of an increasingly delusional and dysfunctional state of mind is a theme that permeates the spiritual and religious traditions.

If our collective self destructive behaviour is simply the result of a detrimental change in our neural system that has caused our brain to overly mature, then restoring that lost state of innocence may be the only option we have to avoid our rapid descent into further insanity.

While a student at Edinburgh Botanic Gardens and preparing a short dissertation entitled 'The Genetic Manipulation of Plants', the subconscious seeds of a revolutionary new theory were sown in Tony Wright's mind.

Over the next 20 years a mixture of scientific curiosity and radical self-experimentation resulted in the development of a simple idea that explains the emergence of increasingly anomalous traits in human evolution. From the rapid and accelerating expansion of our large brain to the mysteries of our mind and the origins of spiritual practice, Tony has developed a new context in which we may understand who we are and has provided a framework for the reunification of the academic and spiritual science of consciousness.

Forged By The Gods

In this talk, Frank Willis will give a brief history of metallurgy, its importance to the human race and how ancients revered the metal worker to the importance and spirituality of the peoples.

Frank will also talk about out-of-time metal objects. Or are they a cover-up of an alternative past?

Frank served an apprenticeship and became a journeyman patternmaker in the foundry industry which started his interest in metallurgy, especially edged weapons.

Why metals? But why the sheer reverence (i.e. returning as a spirit after death) of gold? Does metal have a soul?

This is Frank's own journey, research and views.
