Bodycentric Health

We are so pleased that Dave Murphy is returning to present more information about healthy living

Dave presents a new holistic way to look at the human body and healing that requires nothing from a dangerous medical system that was not designed for us.

This approach costs virtually nothing and consists of four simple, easy to implement techniques... but has the power to eliminate sickness and disease, maintain perfect health and liberate you from dependence on the medical system.

So What Have You Come Back For This Time?

David Graham, a notable expert who has featured on TV and radio, explains the Ins and Outs of Reincarnation

What happens when we die? Have we lived before? Do we really come back into physical human lives again and again? What for? Do I need to come back again after this life? Oh crumbs!

These are big questions that prompt a whole series of different answers according to the beliefs of the person being asked.

Well, here is yet another response that is based mainly on the experiences of myself as a past life regression therapist, of many other regression therapists from around the world and of the experiences of more than a thousand clients.

This all leads us to many other questions: What is the journey of the soul all about? Does it even exist? Do religions have it right? Which ones? Does this journey only include human lives? and there must be a point to all this, surely.

David has been taking people back to their past lives since 2006, mainly for therapeutic reasons yet also including exploration of the history of a soul while in a physical life. He has served as President of EARTH from 2015-18: an international association of regression therapists designed to promote the therapy, maintain high quality training programs and a code of conduct.

This talk will focus on the 'journey of the soul', in and out of physical lives... yet will also include an exercise that invites the attendee to gain insight into their own personal journey.

The Lake District's freshwater is "Safeguarding National Security" Shh!

We are delighted to introduce Marianne Birkby from Radiation Free Lakeland

Tens of millions of gallons of water a day over the last 70 years have been used to cool nuclear wastes made near Preston and 'stored' at Sellafield... who knew?

The Nuclear Industry has first and last dibs on our precious fresh water.

According to the former National Rivers Authority – now the Environment Agency – Sellafield used 97 million litres of fresh water (25 million gallons) a day in 1993.

Compare this with the fracking industry's admittedly shocking water use: Cuadrilla said that fracking the two wells at Preston New Road, which is now expected to take place in late August or early September, would use up to 32,500 litres.

That's a lot of water and quite rightly NGOs have been flagging this up. The silence has however been deafening over the far greater and ongoing freshwater use by the nuclear industry.

Radiation Free Lakeland were keen to find out what the freshwater situation is today.

Following Freedom of Information requests to track down this information, it was so heavily blacked out as to be illegible. But, what we can see through the redactions is mind-boggling.
